A leader knows what's best to do; a manager knows merely how best to do it.

-Ken Adelman

That distinction was clear and powerful for Ken Adelman. What distinction is clear and powerful for you? Take five minutes to write your own distinction between good leadership and management. Discuss what you wrote with a few friends and colleagues. Then, take five more minutes to sharpen your personal distinction and e-mail it to us—info@inspiritas.com. We will post a broad range of perspectives on our website. There is no one answer or definition in this exercise.
